Members of the Chinook Indian Nation participate in the naming ceremony of three canoes at the Fort Clatsop National Memorial in their aboriginal Clatsop territory. One of the three canoes, Okulum, was carved by Tribal member Tony A. Johnson for Fort Clatsop in 1999. The other two canoes are Skakwal, owned by the Chinook Indian Nation and Ul-iy Mits, owned by Tony.

Rocks heated on a fire are placed in the canoe to steam it so it can be opened to the proper shape.

An image from an embroidered vest given away at the naming potlatch for the three canoes.